A conservative estimate concludes there are "320,000 unknown viruses that infect mammals." If infectious viruses of all lifeforms are included "The number rises to 100,939,140."

Come o, come o, come o, come o, come-come, yeah, yeah, yeah Handy Man by James Taylor

If it's only a matter of time or timing or something more sublime portending when angel hosts cry they're just pretending with you out and about grocery shopping stopping by the outlet plip-plopping in the rain, casually unguarded unexpecting in a moment, dangerously defiled by forgetfulness at Walmart's, Dollar General, Dunkin' Donuts miles of smile none unusually iffy with many winks blinks and lapses your guileless lifestyle erstwhile inevitably passing without observation like shit happens like somebody bent your side view mirror for fun, like all the little things you left undone though you oughta, like the flea that bit the rat's ass married the preacher's daughter was just what the plague doctor large numbers ordered like piled high defy compression of what they imply about decry compression into editable soundbites 200 billion galaxies has just been generously revised upward by a factor of 10's an undersized guess, a bone in the throat of imagination that we're alone in this mess the number of germs same number as human tears riding side saddle each one atop one drippy drop teaching us to stop horsing around before the chickens come home to roost with all their unknown pathogens to boot won't boost our confidence in heavenly blessing that's of course unless I'm just guessing a curse or a lesson more or lessened in force if not in farce neither fierce defenders of truth nor better nor worse bring the same lingering hearse Emily parked in limbo decided a clover and a bee made a meadow, you see, but 1000's of bees on 10,000 clovers turns a solo flyby into a symphony of swarming, a cacophony of stings, for large numbers are frightening things even when good, the computation's well understood 320,000 kisses who could survive, 320,000 years of mortal life is but mortally alive the numbers abide they don't reduce by square root or hypotenuse what with all those thronging bacteria on the loose if not in excess an overplus, certainly an overkill, at some point patience gets its fill or the will to live to will because an arm can endure only so much of vaccines then it becomes obscenely riddled with holes like one of the lucky war veterans who didn't succumb to the virus of virtue's heroism 100,939.140 kinds of drama and counting (heard it on a grapevine, muscadine) modestly numbering far far less than the suspect stars though it spread for acres farther than far what's an acre compared to a sky, we shall send all bugs outward into space to die, distance has no meaning in infinity we may end anywhere 320,000 to the moon, 320,000 to Mars, save the rest for the next alien incursion, is that why there're so many to outnumber the inevitable invasion? or some version and thus will they meet the enemy and it is us? a pessimist would say and not be amiss an honest laborer after a hard but fruitless day a saint who's lost the righteousness of their way the secular humanists who facetiously pray yet who needs even a hundred bugs when only one will do to finish you except the superfluity of the universe, the overabundance of Life, if we see millions of colors what good are 24 waxy crayons but a way of teaching us to stay within the lines a wanton reminder from Gods Almighty we're not hard to erase or replace if we're taking up too much space unwisely, doesn't unduly surprise me 137 million helpless chickens slaughtered each day for food I don't mean to be rude but it doesn't exude compassion but if you crave meat high volume is always the fashion what is clear 50,000,000 people die each year five cities the size of New York until it's banging at your door hard, demanding not imploring judgment nearing, your world cannot be saved but another's brave and new begins, no sin stains the whoring loss of whole, entire nations where others waiting patiently, voracious in the wings will walk upon those graves ungracious

After the prom and the queen was killed by only 55 miles to an hour the speed of alcohol to the brain not anywhere near the speed of light one girl one glass went a little bit too fast, choose your faux plague: booze opioids suicide loss of love faux but not fake where each one-of-a-kind one-at-a-time life lives life precariously in the break between outbreaks, make no mistake or misstep wars multiply in empty voids we make so if anyone told me with solemn, impersonal refrain :

"you don't"
I get it inquiring without speck of specious self-conscious shame "which and how many, why'd it take so long" as a person seeking personhood makes every minute throng with seconds, brew them good as well they should for large numbers will find us reminding us how short smug and small our rendition of reality really is large numbers will malign us blinding us to the multitudinous parade of the perpetually petty and its circus of charade 5.51 billion Internet pages we can't escape the drivel the ignorance the racism and hate 50 billion counting non-indexed and all those worms trojans rootkits and unprotected sex none any fun for computers with nowhere to run, there will always be more kinds of fungi than all yours or my loved ones put together though you count our last 100 generations of lineage the rope's too short for the collective tie that binds to form a firm foundation
affording us no hope without civility defining the breadth of humility or possibly depth of despair which used to be mother of invention till she laid down scared of her own torrent of intention, victim of bedbug and incubus. both legion with large numbers slumlording us while Beelzebub, Lord of Flies presiding over immeasurable squalor champions the bacterium incalculable to tally serving no true master where every pinprick of bite rallies to bode microcosmic disaster and when in pain the quantity of our misery can't be weighed 60 seconds are 60,000 and 60,000 the sum of our days but dreams, ah, we count them on one stinking hand refusing to be either measure of a multiplicand which i don't understand there aren't 100,939,140 chances to get it right but dreams shouldn't number like the viral hordes for maybe they know something the microbe ignores for dreams grow so hard to be plenty, and die too easy to desire too many unlike most bacteria a penny will buy a dollar spread like wildfire bringing forests of ancient trees to their knees, destroying myriad animal lives, perhaps that's why there's so much life because there are so many ways to die which is not to say life is cheap and all dries on the vine children can only count to ten when did we suddenly comprehend we can't transcend so we overspend

but large figures lay unrequited waste to our fuzzy warm place under the sun of which there is only one as we string together words reaching the moon how many sentences have never been written yet it takes but a few select words to break our heart for apart from the grandeur of the large which smitten by we improvise a twisty tune how do we count loveliness but with single digits, for the tea rose for all its petals has no fairer beauty than the calla lily we don't need innumerable ways to end life when old age will suffice and aging is ageless so putting aside the rhetoric of rhapsody about all those cornucopias of numbers out of key too large to count, discount, disprove, or disperse, discredit, dislike to disagree, or just plain diss surely not to disengage or dispense from or with neither end this discourse with reverence or rant. let us celebrate instead appraising unencumbered the trio, a 3 free from excess the duo, or a 2 most demure the solo chant the very small integer of which we can be sure though I admit for some (i'm not one such) even 1 God can be one god too much

A Plague of Poesy Upon Us

ONE MORE WAY

one more way

Kids back on the courts ready to play, fresh nets on hoops everyone acting ordinary with a humdrum of pleasant disarray, and nothing to betray the unease of the wary but for the warning on the gate no one heeds, or anymore glimpsing reads.

kids sure don't. I'm not calling foul play about bad news become a commonplace, like sinking a basket with awkward grace or standing close to overheated breath, so find a way to put it to rest, defuse it as you would the new bad news kid on the block, scorned but tolerated, or the R-rated movie making you wince, make a funny joke about it apropos, dispel its power with a countercurse or play it down in tragi-comic verse, after all, it is the new norm.

Kids live chaste lives less prone to panic, no real world skills to play out melodrama, or brood long, become morose with rancor for the outrage, not at that age unless parents ghoulishy reciting the obits at breakfast, they won't be sure.

kidnapping, mugging, bashing, and chokeholds, snakebites, bee stings, fleas, the biting fly, razor blade, gunshot, hunger and thirst, wars, or crashed cars, a wrecking spree from space debris, kidney failure, Alzheimer's, TB, SCA, 4F ratings, the flu will still do it, by shock without warning, stealth, or surprise, religious intolerance, and political intrigue are not unknown, by age, by blood type, gender, or race, kid gloves at the wrong time, tainted meat, unsafe sex, contact sports, slippery floors, walking on the wrong side, terrorist, racist, a broken heart from an abusive spouse, dumb mistakes, earthquakes, or breaking rules kidding around, hard work, tough love, bats in the sky, creepy cops, hasty doctors with vaccines untried, bump, trip, rip, break, jolt, decay, or ossify, fall, drown, burn, sneeze, freeze, or fry

Kids quickly adapt, learn to play, they don't keep score, while the rest of us will manage to adjust despite the dread of sleepless nights, and eternal vigilance, tomorrow's another day, I hear say and no surprise the world will again anxiously learn to dance with one more chance, and one more way to die.

FIZZLED HOPE
WITH A FRACTURED
expectation to be expected if not hoped for or with or on like it or not as likely as not we likely came as we went our hope on par with wishing on a star to pave the roads invent the car extract the oil making it hard to live without gas and a license returning idling arriving driving flying riding

DECIDING HOW MANY ACCIDENTS CAN hide in plain view of dirty windshields without revealing do-or-die trends when sudden ends end all chances lost in unsuspecting rock-checking out of reach of defending whether life merits mending a cup of tea no better than coffee if you're wanting beer cognac booze choose judge decisions

EVERYONE
RISK-TAKERS AND risk-abstainers mix muffled mutterings of commendation and condemnation sans an explicit intent elemental gasps exhaled past misspent breezes of hitchhiking passengers fearing to fear the future's gravity or hilarity not bothering with either whether waived disclaimed now wakened when taken when wagered forsaking

SWEEPSTAKING
TO SCORE
THE ADRENALINE
rush of vulnerable crowds without adequate protection in a time of pandemic bored to leave their homes or morally offended declining to play yet still will follow the game if not with us in name recognition the undecided satisfied to be washed and spun dry among between beside calamity ruin disaster

RASTERED
BIGTIME

before betting on bets together orchestrated by the money the power and the disregard inventing odds even breaking even we won't escape racehorses doped to win are Rin-tin-tin dogfood when they lose the wagering crowd too proud to complain outloud when power plants melt down oil spills fill to the brim slivers of easily upbraided dogma which can't answer why a triple flip off a ramp on a bike same argument can be made for seat-belts yet the former's socially-approved kill as easily as quench the militarization of the social fabric's toxicity of unnamed pathology by way of a risk assessment known as second-guessing a race to supply cozy lifestyles of callous commerce but don't we all take turns trying the same luck appraising indulging overgrazing ever more bigger even excess

THAN THE CAPITALIST
pie's beguiling liabilities we come to live by like the loss of sea ice is worse than of beach sand your mansion's apparently comfortable taking care with industrial farming's pretty labels without a warning of rampant disease and all its attendant miseries blandly tolerated possibly welcomed accepted for insects birds innocent beasts

LEAST ABLE

IF TREATING
pragmatists as pseudo-scary clowns can't be compared to any safe social distance try a refrigerator run on fluorocarbons or a perfect lawn brought to you by pesticides since when do we stand a chance to arraign or constrain against reckless absurdities and mythologies that blind bruise excuse ignorance science progress

WHEN THE INTERNET'S
mined for personal data stored in bunkers after a thousand years future civilizations won't think twice to air its dirty laundry if history's free its air should be inhaled carefully car emissions in the present tense not hence will give you lung cancer while you sit on the fence where no real risk-refrainers only restrainers reconnoiter to assess the measure of their own meager quantity empty volume insufficient weight in a universe of raw data as they totally reinvent their folly and vice dicey propositions actors' scorn for abiding bliss replaced by the hedonistic kiss blessed are the whistleblowers when wantonly blown to bits unmasking the hysteria of a death-wish will never sit well with its fateful fatal fit sourly swirling in the fetid swoon by pledges oaths vows (written or spoken) bow to no state no god no prospect

ALWAYS EXPECTING
FOR HOPE TO DELIVER All affections of unfailing fealty to honor protect what the heck expectations are negotiable like crossing one's heart a new cure's invented sooner or later to create a new woe asteroids willy-nilly crashing to earth (who knew? but) there's no fool like an old fool from his money her beauty their empty beliefs parted

WHO FARTED
DISCREETLY
NOT ONE EAR to hear but the smell lingers for the atheist unbridled preacher on a soap box both hoped (with expectations) what the rich and powerful rarely fret hope smoozing with no man laying with no woman the go-getters getting it done by order and demand to be placated obeyed consummated by assets resources indefatigable energy

LIVING
A LIFE OF edgemanship expecting more from ubiquitous hope is why it's so dangerous conservatives serving hot lava liberals vanilla fudge in lieu of gourmet subtleties we all feel vertigo even with the bar set low (let me hazard a guess) motorists have blind-sided expectation every pedestrian should jive or shrive win lose or draw meaning drive die or stay home

SUNK
INTO HOPE'S sinkhole a quirk of fickle nature but to admit it is to court self-condemnation self-pity self-deceit did we trust too much not enough too little too late the map misled like that diagram in our head searching for a finale to reality (sideswiped or tailpiped) a world for ourselves our kind our brand free of pain the other guy random fate and

THE HUMAN RACE DOESN'T HAVE TO SURVIVE the universe loses nothing but another species in a failed experiment if (some) angels lament in a pie in the sky hi-fa barring hope's indeterminate expectancy imagining gravity won't carry me down if pea-sized faith moved mountains to the sea the Lord is my shepherd my rock my chariot of cloud wash rinse repeat

EXCEPT MINCE YOUR MANNERS SINCE human is my kind but not my type not morally wrong if ethically naive as if sunshine was its right the risk-makers and risk-renouncers both consummate players of a lose-lose game with death risking no wager since inevitable will award no prize few willing to be deeply willing or asking why or why not why now but rather when and where and how

ARE
THE ROSES hoping heaven gives just rewards expecting outworn threadbare social costumes to make do managing to make it through weathering the storms wearily wearing tattered outmoded norms (all the while) forbearing the rains lightnings snows not expectant at least not wanting to give credence to hurricane cyclone tornado

TILL BLOWN AWAY
LEAVING A masquerade of meaning to uphold or we sleep through the darkest days letting the status quo remain quo don't upset the applecart rock the boat get out of line the other guy's voted for the wrong guy (that's why we) skillfully pretend we'll never do it again no not with wit scorn or profound meditation to be born embodied incarnated let

WAITING
IN THE WINGS take that foolish risk of self-aware existence find a tinseled thrill in following the illusions of their will may actually realize a transient dreary prospected (even disinfected) with hope despite the chances of multitudinous threat greater than the number of birds loosed to the skies starling dove goose sparrow barn swallow pigeon

WHICH
I'VE SEEN hell because they over-estimated the risk of flying unlike Icarus whose hope was wax with faulty expectations for unrealistic ecstasy but that's the recurring problem's lit fuse: we continually confuse confabulate confound wax paper

I know I do

Is it...you know... back to where you used to go, no matter if past due came true or who follows your lead or your machismo, none of us have a clue so read my lips: it's over when over, lacking tact but in fact a fact, I'm not taking sides I lean in either direction depending on the inflection of the flak nothing here about hypocrisy or opportunism just a cultural schism over the nature of infection begging for a theory of navigation above my station in life though you insist on returning to normalcy like it used to be so take a look-see in the meantide on that long slow burn to ecocide astride uninterrupted war paid for by greed fueled by the sleaze brigade intent on corrupt courts filling prisons, a very bad hair day you swear to make good when the fire burns down to the scalp, I'm out, your move, but for the high price of gas to go no place fast you haven't already been of late in the past and not hot on, so just visit with your Sony, Nintendo, or Xbox console, worlds untold, games with plots more calamitous than any pandemic's

its crust a splotchy, blotchy must for collectors who by-and-by a four and twenty thousand monkeypox viral load baked in ready for crimson and rust when the pie bust began to writhe, squirm, and fuss as well as ping because viruses can't sing which is a skill reserved for blackbirds I'm told moon knows, stars glow with no angst, I love sitting home preferably alone away from the sun, quarantined with a good book's normal for me, writing, surfing the Internet, thinking's a good bet, good exercise, cooking good food, sinking into goodly alpha trances where no news is good news, no bad boy bugaboo gonna skew the triumph of those advances

take my chances,

hunker down but not too low I can't get up and go if it's over or just lingering, no one stopping me or you from the great outdoor wide open view if not fresh air then saucy or stale normalcy flat as a predictable TV series, but I digress, it's over when you decide, I don't always mask in public so take me to task, tsk, tsk, it's a risk it's called Life, if you get too close hold your breath walk fast till they pass is one more skill to make a muscle memory or make me an enemy hate me if you will but hey, play one of those 1300 hour AAA digital diversions and never think about time again read War and Peace out loud real slow, a 500,000 piece jigsaw puzzle, better yet learn new skills like candle-making and glycerin soap, there's no end to the sizes, shapes, and flavors, determine to get into the Guinness World Book of Records creating the first covid protein spike soap and candle set the scent of antiseptic, and used up air in N95 masks, or just chill, go zen, hang out let the world pass if one day is a thousand years but if that's too dreary long a game you got something else to complain about

if Normal...left them out without anyone noticing we're in the future where illness was solved and all fevers dissolved, they even learned to like my snarky attitude but I'm sure they got something else to whine about since they spoiled, encouraged by a generous serving of badly-written commercial ads and dumbed-down flicks where they smile too much way out of touch. Climate change ain't going nowhere, neither is the next ten years of new grievances, outages, and outrages but think of the money they'll save when all those tacky fast food joints mercifully board up windows, I mean why pick on pandemics when misery is endemic to the human condition, and babies still take agonizing hours to arrive, and a book I'm writing's been 20 years in the making so they can write a book they'll finish that last belated chapter just as everything returns to normal, back to that job they hate, give the finger to that neighbor they couldn't stand, take long trips to places wonderfully wild they'll love to regret because there wasn't a Walmart yet within 100 miles buyers don't be beguiled, bewary, germs never die they migrate to other lands without green card or passport not even a driver's license, they'd be wise to get used to it since disease is normal, misery's normal, pain's normal, disappointment is here to stay, believing the grass is greener is a cliché since it all turns to hay, decay and disillusionment's routine, death by any five figure number of things is a staple, where they been? a virtual world free from sin? (or its equivalent) but the deadly flu's normal too how quickly we forget not having a normal life is normal so let's give a yip yip yippie hooray to the not-normal Normal the pandemic's reminded us I don't want to go back to predictable strife but onward to some day when life's truly, finally normalized we don't have to think about normalcy, but for now plagues are here to stay some lasting ten decades four generations waylaid, you got lucky with a three year tour of duty gave you the opportunity for the chance to play like abnormal wasn't normal so go ahead put on that spooky mask, cop or robber breathe shallow, quick, maybe the bugs won't eavesdrop but if they hear then just don't inhale, not breathing's totally normal, ask the 60 million brand new corpses do it every year

refuses to be more than nine serving suggestions

EUTERPE

muse of lyric poetry

Here awhile to address your concern how to find lyric in flea or germ to enhance and multiply a surfeit of parlance poetry play or just common parlay whether by chance or serendipitous accomplishment, if you can find no use spurn but don't burn me in effigy it's one of nine servings suggested. hopefully pre-digested sent with no intent to roast by boil in oil attentive ears clogged by viral loads of loaded excuses never far from close to raining in the desert but morose from inducing authorial motivation from quixote palpitations of neurotic expectation, gardening at gooses there would be artists have no muses (as they claim though inquisitions permeable like dust and germ impregnating at the drop of a hat on musty beats more than willing to be dragged into bed dressed and hot splashed with cologne and flattery, spoiled mongrel heirs to a throne (presumably disowned), but them hit the road Jack if it's not in your cards not in your blood or your brood or juices from your stomach but everywhere else in a which of a what of any a thing I'm not selling any of. this is not a pitch for a brand or a franchise or a line of neckties I make of the ordinary situation an invitation finding a muse is no more obtuse than fanning a cluff or swimming in the buff without embarrassment free of armor my only advise about nudity is (I'll do my best) don't try to take it leave it on or take it all off

CALLIOPE

muse of the epic

Just like good writing has no in-between to admire critics and fans are at the extremes prudes and prurients straight or bent hellhound or heaven-sent a muse can be just you musing reflectively momentarily, turn off the TV from (of course) stealing the show let your mind go grpate unexpectedly in loops and parabolas let slip in time, muses are sprals and Moebius strips Zeus set nine of us loose Clio Euterpe Thalia
Melpomene Terpsichore Erato Polymnia Ourania Calliope half of which you can't pronounce to entreat or should, go dutch treat boarding with your neighborhood if you can't find a local muse to befriend or seduce or bind one to your idle pen then design one invent or make one up or when all is said and done pretend send your bendy will to fill the emptiness don't depend on a writing coach's consultation for your exasperation. once healed you'll return to the same status que confusing your misfortune with woe while some fortunes need to miss. prosperity isn't bliss indisputable comfort spawns no adventurer in you who waiting for a muse is more likely waiting on you to do something anything. we do by doing work it jerk it posture with a pose prance even giggle, don't lose your childlike wonder your willingness to play mend the heart and soul sundered left to their own devices and while you're splicing see infinity in an undivided hour even if only long for the undersized romance. take the chance or lose the spices of life to incite to provoke to be the joke you be. instead the line of obligatory social norms, a bum without a brainstorm or recognition of a landform though all around hills dales and sunsets incarnadine you live in blatand flatland which is why I think you still don't understand or divine. my epical epocal critical oracle yet I'll be here to allay your dross, possibly allay a liaison for your affair but that's your trouble you don't dare cheat on your tenuous bubble of believism -isms

the act. team to perform ship the hormonal trip. if a sufficiently advanced science looks like magic then try a sufficiently advanced magic looks like science good bye you see how imagination works? it lurks in the truism willing to subvert, flirt with heresy and apostasy ride the fallacy to your freedom's boundary (just don't go over) muses are not goosies but neither are we wasns our words are hummingbirds winging their way backward when not hovering in the air born for dynamic stasis more bumblebee than fowl less ship than the places it tries to find anchor, can you not agree with me germs have muses that facilitate mutation in novelistic even magico-neurological shapes, what's stopping you having a clue? nothing to berate except you think it's ridiculous and badly versed but that's the point imaginings must never (you see) whine to their rocketstorm worst impersonation of me traded for politically-corrected possibili ties anyone?

muse of hymns

So then how shall I compare thee to a somber day? was written in the autumn sans bouquet and lemonade but fall ing late es and a shiver of chill in the shade don't wait for summer showers to grow there's just as much poetry in snow if you heap your passers on pleasantries and miss the forest for the trees a hymn to your inability to sing will ring true and as much a song as an ode which doesn't require an urn for a Keats your cabinet's replete with ballads full glutes of melodies unheard of desire but be careful what you wish for you'll only receive the obvious and the trite (don't think yourself cleverer and overwrite) all things worth wishing are beyond your ken they surprise you with nuance and a surplus of what you can't surmise of freshness and shine cease waiting at the wishing station leave behind the stagnant motivation AWOL on vacation you've just forgotten how to see and dare I say feel anything more than your feelings seeming to be real but inspiration isn't a waxing branch it's the whole tree Clio Otte At Ou Come Inthee

ERATO

muse of love poetry

So poor Vincent lacking grace went and disfigured his face over a conflip-ration of sunflower petals but spare the painted pot calling the kettle black and white the blight's in all of you sad but true and nothing I could do when Thomas drank himself to death after driving forays through green fields both were stricken by pestilential muses and while delirium has its uses you best just let your mind hang loose forgo the noose take a neutral stance about the vagaries of romance see the world like Dr Seuss sans the green eggs for sweetties were always the rage they just don't feature in your reveries maybe germs seismic as a catastrophic cosmic convulsive conflagration of convoluted disease is the earth's crusty immunization against civilization or what then does ? food war horror sex or beat or take sex. please, no one can leave for long alone doesn't take an academic's vocabulary or tone or the hope of fairy dust to turn a wicked phrase a string of crazed one syllable words (mostly 4-letr ter) just don't tease or squeeze me for your one night stand confusing sex sizzling below the arial lotus will love erupting from the cown of the head beyond and above known as a corona as in the rarely fully eclpsed sun or the all day boner or a virus common when its cough goes viral lungs half breathe deep and then some, we're double the half passed half-ease half past and done

THALIA

muse of comedy

Frost wrote of going home to sleep what could be more mundane to explain or write a rhymed refrain but yet it garners universal fame, why? he found truth in common sense and beauty in a fence that makes good neighbors though I personally believe no neighbors make
best fences and in saying so you've hopefully caught on for you can't do worse than a little perverse truth and a penny's worth of lies, let me help you flinch and wince when the humor's too light to touch base but remember feet don't belong on the floor not if you wish to rise but biting flies versus beautiful butterflies, the one makes you deeper for a God even poorly dressed the other you might be willing to confess (it's a guess) you'd like the germ a fly's a wonder of genomic efficiency a design only a God could be sublime as to suggest a hating place for grace in such shabby creature you think yours the only nation or clan on earth that deserves respect of worth? fidelity to reality belies the most potent contra-indication to deify easy expectations of what a world should be and its Deity?

muse of dance

And William as well as you well will see in a simple to be or not immortalized his gist everyone knows the words but what's his name (though idolized escapes me) improvised on a large quantity, if asked ahead of time you'd've thought nothing could've been dumber or number than numbers that hardly walk much less dance but it zillions of gazillions still don't fill you with rhapsody (even if it's money) add salt and pepper like malt liquor nothing could be slicker to begin your fall from decorum into dexterity the sooner the wetter is better if bitter you can't uncover inspiration like a missing babysitter under the squishy couch you'll be searching hard all day to a month of Sundays don't find what's not lost or sitting tight at any cost for any ray of hope for the miracle of rainbows (ont only needed clouds which are multidulrous crowds both in sky and on the ground all round in wet puddles from both sides now giving more in the way of illumination than any ten cent uneurian flash of light you assume will shock your uninformed plight from its writer's unrighteous unrequited block-block-block.

CLIO

muse of history

I urge you in view of all this (and the brevity of life) be reckless and bold get the story told if pandemics don't fire you or what your appetite to write, that salt and pepper is still up for grabs any ole speck of anything can do it creatively isn't particular don't misconstrue, you are too choicy but try to embrace this writ to wit: salt infects the taste of food or will I be accused of having used an image unseemly and unwise but it works it hurts nicely when slightly abused, that's why or thy this in your constipated database a virus too small a bug to be an insect at all so small it's barely alive yet it thrives, and about death what's more galvanizing than the mystery of your history or more inspiring than your own demise start with death and end anywhere you can't hide from your own life no more than from dust in empty spaces or germs in the most sterile of places both hang in the washed dried and folded air reminding you it's everywhere if you only look so look; movie illuminated masterpieces with other boredom so how anyway after all on any day can I foreswear thee (cliched or not go ahead reuse a muse and then some) or compare thee to:
that summer's [mid]s baby [sun]

MELPOMENE

muse of tragedy

or a loaf of bread or a rowdy goat or perhaps a writer's influenza, how I know what I know is neither here nor here it's how I create your fear to stick in the throat float in the air, reality is perception don't let science corrupt you numbers only exist in minds so every real philosopher finds I can make you fat or thin or faster than lyricspeed nothing inspires like daemon you dare to ride but fear as pride or greed if you write just to increase the sum total of intellectual property then cease I'll compare you to a jerk a side a cat, a beast at the least maybe get a life or eat a peach or round a harpin curve or pick a saint or a sinner in place or kiss a frog or suck an egg for love or money imagined good or unimaged trag-comedy but only do because you do only that will be true a stone rolling down a hill is all the pull of gravity without a will to find its way is a travesty, quit shunning your muses your thrusts your wahoos yahoos and voodoos and taboos, stop running, I'm not amused by evasive subterfuge so go off the record off the wall if you're still on it then crawl like an unknown insected on a strand or try an unhinged lust a grievous need a stinking pus a vein to bleed a cockroach in a stew or radioactive dust epidemic or endemic definitely systemic I hope it won't have to cost that much but do as you must

AFTERMATH AND SURRENDER

"Someone is dead.
Even the trees know it" Anne Sexton

but Not without wars the wearied ways of wasted fervor, not for the longed-for balm the long-scarred days though it be men in arms, famine, or the plague who scare the hour of the ghost observer for the ones that fall by visible ruinous blast in any rout of skirmish a new melee engages ten more by ten by ten morose invisible invaders fly aghast their hoped-for skies rent, relent of warrior's flesh rough and dry resists inside astride the desolation rages makes demands and then is spent
but Not without want the waning leaves brown, brash and brazen on unforgiving branches cannot save flicker, falter, faint before lust unliberated crouching in long-unhallowed graves impatient stems with flowers bide to fruit, withered, wilt in silence enshroud the oozy clouded air unfit for wings their wishes wheeling, rolling roil-roar raspy windy-winding down furloughed from lips burst ripe as bombs the far seeds flung wage small remembrance on bare bones strung among a featureless forgetting while one wailing, wind-blown eyebrighted hero-lover living long, longing lost fails unrequited in a storm-sown horror-shudder, unknown generations spent make no stand farther than will sputter only to rot unreaped and then be bent
but Not without words the lever lingers, repentance revived, its hunger replayed but not without anguish the rippling whiplash riotous impales with rude ruddy pallor mind to spine, yet not for the sake of peace will its weapons cease whining, bodies buckled under, breath assails exhausted to release while infinite worlds away watching worlds apart plant blood-stained roots along a river of nails
Not without surcease the longed-for surrender sleeps a sleep long on a door that does not knock, not with the long-sought staccato, the bars of night lock

IF I GET VACCINATED, GONNA BE HATED

Vaccinated, Gonna be Hated

(a young boy's travailed confession)

vaccinated I'll be hated for sure my friends'll tweet I'm one more effete chump classmate'll unlike me unsubscribe roast me alive in my ill-fated vibe unplug my voicemail block my tik tok call me a punk kissing up for attention not to mention Willy Boy we call him and his henchmen they no joke or what's the alternative locked down in my room smoke a joint in clouds of doom and gloom ticked off talking to my bored teacher on her boring Zoom hunkered down waiting while I hang around vegetating (eat cold pizza spike proteins baked in was rumored or somewhere somebody with a sick sense of humor) not Dad probably glad if I lost my place on the home team can't even be mascot it's mean just over a shot I mean it seems like I'm caught between Dad's slanted view and the Devil and the deep blue

sigh, I'm not red or blue or even purple, or green I'm vanilla, just a fella trying to sit here and write a poem not trying to right the wrongs of the world or pen an anthem for daddy's dukedom, can't even get tested for his showdown western, and I'm not the best one with a gun a bummer, not my idea of an exhilarating summer and that's just the start, it gets dumber and dumber.

"Yo, Son, are you ready to go?" a voice of parent from below and you know what that means you ought to if you were a kid once unless you're a dunce.

You see,
Dad's oblivious to my amphibious existence a poet underwater explore the dark subconscious then get up have to go out hunt herbivore rabbits in a state park after dark that's Pop's idea of adventure not mine I swore I'd say No next time so fine next time or seems I won't be making it to 18 wasting the day away streaming movies on Netflix (more cold pizza don't even wanna heat it) Dad insists he always picks the most misogynistic pseudo-artistic voyeuristic juvenile slapstick I'm serious what a prick yeah you wanna be a prick here's my arm skip the swag let my cat out your mailbag meow meow meow put it in a sack take it to the lake don't return to sender what can I say hightail it go to Walgreen's skip the parental consent false ID except bad idea locked away in jail

frowning 'cause lame's the name of this shame game okay, so what if it's true I do become magnetized there are worse ways to find lost needles in a haystack, not surprised Dad don't read my poetry he'd quickly surmise I'm not like him and what of it if he thinks I moved to the Left, been radicalized, selling out to hug trees, please, he don't know his son, I don't do dumb.

"Son, are you coming it'll be good for you" then in no uncertain terms
"I'm not asking, I'm telling" so gimme a clue.

Do rabbits carry germs Pop? what's the terms of this contract can you guarantee I won't contract anything by the time we get back you know deer carry ticks rabies chronic wasting disease please and they can sneeze no one masks no one asks while dismembering the carcass what the hell it's not so bad I get secretly micro-chipped from a booster Walmart probably hides them in the seams of their jackets you got to be 12 feet in range of a reader like a doorway I can whack it with my cap when nobody's looking or they hidden in a birthday bouquet or I get one embedded in my playstation they watch who I take out in Warhammer Dad bought it worst choice yet no sweat maybe my lukewarm pizza's wired too worse case scenario I microwave my stomach my arm I don't care I don't do smarmy it's a stinker

glare while swallowing the whole nine yards hook, line, and sinker, scared to speak my mind, take the bull by the horns, with a little luck buck the system or I just endure the bull, push it off to another time, swallow the hogwash, man that sucks, a mole in a hole taking on all comers while it just keeps getting dumber.

"If you don't come down, I'm coming up" and he will don't test him and I'm not I just can't get myself in gear but I'm trying.

I'm not lying
I'm not trying to be a liberal it's gay that's what they say anyway but no I don't eat pineapple pizza and I sure like living another day pay the piper stay away from hanging out with Dad's nutty buddies spitting and bellowing in airtight places bad jokes cheap smokes a lot of back-slapping brave talk one upsmanship shit leaving's not an option but how low can you go I know I'll go on with the status quo go with Dad's flow be daddy's bonehead blow it off instead he'll say 'man up, boy' yeah right and fight a plague multiplying sight unseen don't need a Chinese plot for that or a Russian scheme but Dad says they all fake won't take the bait swears by a troll in his favorite blog maybe but somebody dying it ain't a bone in their throat when they choke for air in a ventilator think smaller covert incog

wink wink but I wouldn't care if the cure turned me into a zombie anyone can see I'm already the walking dead, it'd be end game outta bullets instead of camping out in bed, I'd be running free, I'm fed up being led to a bloodless slaughter, fed up saying 'I oughta' when it's Dad shoulda fathered a daughter, dum da dum dum.

She'd've with lips wide open & then some "Go hunting, yeah, right, screw you!" flips the bird, nothing, silence Dad's in shock won't lay a hand on her but he'd knock my block off if I so much as posture.

Fear is not a bad thing don't scoff it's okay kids rebel against being bossed not that I"m gonna volunteer but some do against parent preacher Sunday School teacher that creature from the black lagoon is what we call Miss Sourpuss end of the block lost cause oughta wear her underdrawers over her head so get over it if I'm offed being careless I wind down till I wind up 6 feet under if not that some other blunder makes me RIPeace like an autumn leaf without a branch but if I take the needle there's that avalanche of hate but what have I got to lose the whole thing's overrated by a mile either way end up a damaged juvenile shoulda just got myself vaccinated if belated

or possibly the Jews, no big F-ing deal if a tiny squirmy tentacled thing's swimming in the brew, or if Jesus disapproves you gotta do what you gotta do and if you need to, run, but not get outta shape if it's all fake all of it bad news if hunting's not my bent, neither is eating crow, really dumb.

But Dad's a decent man, I try to understand so
"Now!, Let's go!", and I went.

Stanza 1

My truth is growing short and I can't hold it any longer my truth is getting old and I'm not getting any stronger all that truth among us so youthful so bold a story ends happily when a story's half told but the truth is slow to tell it's aging fast and what if none will last before I go where time decays like space implodes and flowers die when blooming their lush intoxication heedless thrashing all doom us to fall when fall they do trashing our rhythms with odious odors of alien rhyme breeding seeds for fresh indoctrination.

Truth absolute inviolate ineffable beyond the old Father in his bent sky our loathsome brooding which is frail to find the scent or hit the nail to know, to judge, desire, swallow every solid truth is hollow yet so sweet so so convincing or bitter or salty winter tale, a spring's summer of smooth sailing soured seas with every flavor of seasick I can name did I think I had a special altruistic anointing? and certainty could be tarned even the speed of light is disappointing why couldn't it be a nice round number.

Refrain:
Whatever truth lifts its head in pride let it be taken down.
Whatever truth I manage to survive be drowned. For this is my

ELEgy
FOR TRUUTH

Truth slumbers inside a sleep we can't wake to hear it breathe but only watch it dream, wait is all, seize the confused day based on any jumble of reasons, maybe it's but the spine of truth bowed to exit in a scare the wearied worn worldstage of witless worry starring the best partisan players who seldom play fair.

But are there any truths so fair as fine? maybe yours, not mine not anytime lately none so keen as to be overly-friendly, none so just as to endure the truth about itself in a frank op-ed with no way forward from crutches to bed to an unmarked grave in the back of my head not knave nor brave to go my way free of soul forsaken of minding, preferring pilfered days filled with fantastic reverie abandoning those high in the sky appley pie humble as dirt, those sure, those rich, those pure, the infallible wannabes, the ones that really hurt those provocateurs of belief six fingers can't hold them, leaves from withering windblown trees soon to be skeletal mockeries that I was cleverly bought, you see an amputee of credibility sold to the most enticing verity paraded about scenic runways in latest haute couture scantily clad or dressed to the nines brazen or demure it's all dead flesh below my pissy waistline.

Look at that last virus we almost succumbed to left our anchors of wisdom soaked in sifted sand what did we learn? something borrowed something blue? ancient truth but novel too we wind up pandering to pandemics of truth plagues of information everything swearing for us, you, me some kind of liberation at the least exemption publicly, privately, small price or exorbitant fee graciously cruel, abominably grand til they caravan every woman and man taker or taker to their deserted ends yet thirsty for more because let's face it all truth is pretend as the sum of our favorite featured facts our licorice sticks and rocket ships meet the arc of the world and bend so, thanks, but don't send those flowers when I'm feeling numb as the dumbest of pain shamefully depletes my energy, my dignity and then some.

Refrain:
||||
Whatever truth has lied may it be reprogrammed.
Whatever truth has martyred me let it be damned.

Lasting truths are ones willing to be lost to the fickle cost of irrelevancy which will not save their muse not in caskets to resurrect in expected time then only to refuse one last disappointment melting down the spine and all truths will there's nothing sublime about a ghost nothing profound enough to die for for all truths kill their servant hosts who would master them, my truth is ignorant to speak and I'm senescent faster, my truth is vulgar at my end for my ignorance is vaster.

Interludal

there is nothing of no romantic love but must believe reservations not much sworn testimonies are of little use if I allow them under my roof with no place at my table along with fairy tales and fable but sit with little snot noses in a corner and pout while I pummel them giving back abuse for abuse lacking hope and spark my in a lowering dark expectant in a void or wake infected I was never much some are pretty what's left but to exit rejecting right in my downfall but I will not, not all the way since I know how to borrow convincing argument to stave off thirsty times when the wine is water but I'm repeating myself so to continue as I oughta science that won't rust sugar-coated lust no god I must without a hundred do I trust that as fact?

with stinging doubt but quietly now, subdued used truths cower of grimmer reapers sleep neither suit my pleasure for a roll of the dice type of life but none are very nice gracelessly by measure inflected and good, both accomplices

With every loss my credence grows poorer but hearts are lawless believing many things owning many and varied ideas, joys and fears wearing their shoes, their jewelry, their wings try this try that yes yes try on another hat, pick and choose mix and match, thrust and parry, chuck it or clutch it but fuck it I never met a truth I didn't want to marry then divorce, so much truthity around evincingly cold with diamantine brilliance I'm ready to be seduced by the next eagerly saucy blushing bride, take the bait go for the ride because I can't live in a world with problems that can't be solved or a sin that can't be absolved a back always bowed or truth that always invalves relativity for complicity why would I do this, why? in health or in sickness and in the absolute of dying since all things die upon reflection truth is no exception though it skillfully scorns the budding demise from its wilted stillborn something stolen just the same something skewed something malmed something blackened something bluer than the wounds I wind up wearing when my truths are getting fewer for in truth truth hasn't aged well and I'm not feeling truer.

Refrain:
Whatever truth that could not see I'll try not to relive it.
Whatever truth that could not be I know I must one day forgive it.

A Pandemic Postscript

write another poem about airborne diseases.
Please,

I'm through lionizing flea-bitten dogs, while sitting on a backlog of loose verse about uplifting subject matters, or worse if happy times in the carefree sunshine foster rancid butter, what of it, truth will fail me again.

dark days suit me better after all, but not things that run loose in the night, and crawl and bite and I wouldn't know till too late to mediate a truce, so believe in the Lord
if you're shaken
I do sometime when I'm feeling forsaken but not always.
You're

not old enough to remember The Diamonds singing facile and footloose The Stroll in days of ersatz innocence that went.
Wait

therefore for your next catastrophe panic Saint John will dance again frenzied and manic a global conflagration fast, loose and free soiling your chastity, threatening unholy infestation, castration, cannibalization, damnation, annihilation, where apocalypses will rally all the 4-syllable rhymes I can muster and enough 4-letter words salvaged from the back alley for the most obscene, over-the-top, R-rated blockbuster ever contrived, assuming

IMAGES

Composite imagery derived mostly from AI-generated text-to-image art as found on openart.ai. At this time no copyright is enforceable for AI-generated art. Author will be glad to include the name of any prompter in these credits for any of the images used.
For the composite Elegy for Truuth, 17 were selected, arranged, and composited in a graphics application using a total of 49 layers. Dust and Germs Like Muses made use of 23 images and 26 layers.

TEXT

All text of poetry written by the author unassisted by any AI tools.

VERSIONS

This collection of poems is published in three authorized versions: Text only Text enhanced with imagery Text and imagery with introductory notes While the imagery is an enhancement of the text the formatting of the poems are integral to them and therefore remains intact in the text only version. While poetic text formatted in this way may be included in the category of 'visual' poetry or 'asymmetric' verse, the author treats it as one of many elements of 'sprung' poetry—a term coined by Gerard Manley Hopkins to name the informal meter of his verses. In this case, the formatting and layout of the verse is also sprung.

Some Rights Reserved.

Permission granted to quote a representative portion of any poem, or to use it in any other work of art provided it does not form the central purpose of that work, or advocate for any cause, and provided appropriate attribution is included. Any quotation should include the text's formatting when possible, which is integral to it.

The author rejects the modern concept of 'intellectual property' as oxymoronic, and a distortion of the original intent of copyright, which was to encourage creativity, not to lock it away behind paywalls. While derivative rights are retained, and the right to protect this work from misuse, limited permission is granted to others in the spirit of shared creativity.

Encore

I swore though I wrote more I would never write more than more and I tried, but plans self-sworn are subject to the override of an encore

I must speak of bovines, shellfish, fruits, and nuts to round out the subject matter of what's what and how

there was mad cow, a disease bowed them to their knees when the murrain went to the brain the industry wasn't pleased so it slaughtered them mercilessly but it does that anyway every other day of the week by the scourge of industrial farming is more than alarming, yet it isn’t effete to stop eating meat.

The American chestnut, a mighty tree, if you saw it you'd agree past tense, it's gone hence the way of all flesh, scales, fur, and bark went dark on a masterpiece, was untold grief when the last leaf fell, but hell birds of a feather drop together.

So much for monoculture where greed eats itself since capitalist vultures don't feed on wisdom but to peck at bones, it's not good for a paycheck since it makes us circumspect, do you know the greatest food crop not wheat, corn, not even coffee, the Cavendish make a wish it hang around dangling as it has that unabashedly phallic symbol and if you were nimble as a fish you could flee to some other sea but only proving they must be all connected like the earth topside is all joined by the fabric of air and therein is the scare, sink or swim we're gonna drown in it nail shut the windows, bar the doors, go down into the basements for a reprieve but we still have to breathe.

Landscapes overrun by invasive species don't mind at all new worlds to conquer while together we go bonkers on the very large but still a boat, sloshing while variety keeps it afloat somewhat, apart from the doubt it's the thing pandemonium can't completely rout, but who can say some monstrous mutation may one day have to be our new salvation.

The worst nuisance of all, apathy, natural or engineered this very human pest is something to be feared, no germ destroyed the bison, the carrier pigeon

no bigots of religion, or science gone awry the ocean dies from overfishing you might start wishing for plagues with cures, lobsters can live over 60 years but they all expire in 3 by the rot of commercial fisheries.

And what of the change in climate.

Political division, fascism.
But back to the natural world that suffers most of all the Dutch elm, 75 million gone and the white pine tree, 1 billion strong who hasn't heard of the potato blight killing them almost overnight in the 1840s, with 1 million souls lost included in that fight.

Deer and gorillas with chronic wasting syndrome koalas with chlamydial and a fungus that dangerously affects 200 species of amphibians, nothing here to prettify with rhythm or rhyme.

Last in line
I don't welcome the demise of humanity nor herald it, but asteroids that rain from the skies of heaven —an inevitable ill wind to end the human endeavor but blessed is the pathogen that thrives without sin but how will it survive without a host within to vex: by whatever evolves next.
